Public History Plan

The Public History Plan is designed for graduate students who are primarily interested in careers in archival administration or museum management. It provides students with both theoretical and practical training in these areas.

Public Historians apply their skills and knowledge outside of academic or classroom settings. The Public History Plan at Wright State University integrates a traditional American history curriculum with courses taught by professionals in archives, museum studies, and historic preservation; an internship; and a project leading to a Master of Arts degree in history with a specialization in public history.

Required Academic Core Courses: 12 credit hours

Students in the Public History plan are required to complete 6 hours of seminar (HST 7100- 7830), Historical Methods (HST 7000) and either an additional seminar or one 6000-level course. One seminar or 6000-level course may be in non-U.S. History.

Required Public History Courses: 11 credit hours

Public history students must complete the following core requirements:

- HST 7500 Introduction to Public History 3
